An introduction to the Symposium

Today, new global energy challenges are emerging. The application of the huge number of new technologies and new equipment makes the electric power system more complex. The deep integration of information technology and power systems brings not only intelligence, but also challenges to the energy system. To deal with those new challenges and achieve goals such as the UN Sustainable Development Goals for 2030, Paris Agreement and air pollution abatement, we need to reconsider and investigate the issue of energy development and provide effective systematic solutions for the upgrading of the power systems.

The aim of the CIGRE symposium Chengdu 2019 is to provide a forum for recent research findings and operational experiences related to sustainable, active and digital development of power systems (from UHV to distribution), and in particular, to address recent technical advances and policy developments that allow transmission and distribution networks to enter their next era.

The CIGRE Chengdu 2019 Symposium will take place at Charming Yield Nature Nook Hotel (CYNN Hotel), Chengdu, China on 20-26 September, 2019. This Symposium is sponsored by the International Council on Large Electric Systems (CIGRE), CIGRE Chinese National Committee, and Chinese Society for Electrical Engineering (CSEE). The organizers are State Grid Sichuan Electric Power Company and Sichuan University.
